

05 – Guest Roadmap: Incremental Conversations in the Political Space

Booking is a product roadmap. You earn marquee guests by building an audience and a track record. Climb the ladder deliberately — each tier of guest unlocks the next.

Note on names: the people below are illustrative archetypes and example targets to show the booking strategy and trajectory. Treat them as a template, not a confirmed booking list — actual outreach depends on relationships, news cycles, and availability.

The guest ladder (why incremental matters)

Tier 4	▲	Marquee / national figures	— earned by reach + reputation
Tier 3		Validators & rising stars	— earned by a credible body of work
Tier 2		Practitioners & in-the-arena	— earned by a few strong episodes
Tier 1		Reachable allies & experts	— start here, build the reel
→ episodes / audience / credibility over time

You don't open by cold-pitching a sitting senator. You build 8–12 excellent episodes with accessible, high-substance guests, then the marquee names say yes because the show is now a real platform.

Tier 1 – Foundation (Months 1–2): reachable, high-substance

Guests who are accessible, articulate, and aligned — to nail the format and build the highlight reel.

- Academics & historians — race, democracy, voting rights, political history (Blow's intellectual lane).
- Authors with new books — built-in promo motivation = easy yes; they bring their audience.
- Local & state officials — mayors, state legislators, DA/AG candidates; hungry for reach.
- Movement & nonprofit leaders — voting-rights orgs, civil-rights groups, policy shops.
- Journalists & columnists — Blow's peers; mutual-audience boost.

Goal: 8–12 episodes that prove the format, fill the clip library, and establish the brand.

Tier 2 – Credibility (Months 3–4): in-the-arena practitioners

- Sitting members of Congress (House first — more accessible than Senate).
- Strategists & operatives — campaign managers, pollsters, comms directors.
- Former officials — ex-administration, ex-staffers who can speak freely.
- Issue specialists — economists, legal scholars (courts, civil rights), public-health voices.

Goal: establish the show as a serious stop on the political-media circuit.

Tier 3 – Momentum (Months 5–8): validators & rising stars

- Senators & governors.
- Rising national figures — the next-cycle names before they're everywhere.
- Major authors & public intellectuals — the marquee thinkers.
- Cultural figures with political weight — artists, athletes, faith leaders who move opinion.

Goal: episodes that make news and get cited by other outlets.

Tier 4 – Marquee (Months 9–12+): national figures

- Presidential / national-ticket figures, party leadership.
- Globally recognized activists & icons.
- Headline newsmakers — the "how did they get that interview?" bookings.

Goal: signature, talked-about interviews that define the brand and drive subscription spikes.

Booking strategy & engine

LEVER	TACTIC
The book-tour pipeline	Track upcoming political book releases; authors need press → reliable, high-quality guests.
News-peg outreach	When someone is central to a story, pitch that week . Speed wins bookings.
The warm network	Blow's existing relationships (NYT, MSNBC, author world) are tier-jumping shortcuts.
Reciprocity	Guests cross-promote to their audiences — bake sharing into the deal.
Series & franchises	"Governors series," "2026 midterms series" — packaging makes asks easier and bingeable.
Make guests look good	Reputation for fair, smart, well-distributed conversations becomes the best recruiting tool.

Balance & editorial integrity

- Ideological range within principle: primarily progressive-aligned, but include "Devil's Advocate" conversations with conservatives/dissenters where the exchange is honest and substantive — this builds credibility and shareability.
- Demographic & geographic diversity: not just D.C.; surface state/local and movement voices.
- Avoid sameness: vary archetype week to week (official → academic → organizer → author) so the grid stays fresh.
